Pittsburgh was ranked the most-livable city in the U.S.

It is a small city of ethnic neighborhoods, scenic hills, trees, rivers and farmland, yet offers world-class fine arts, museums, and educational institutions, three professional sports teams, a zoo, aquarium, and the National Aviary, excellent schools and health care, and a wide variety of outdoor and family activities. Despite Pittsburgh's big city offerings, people are friendly, crime is low, rural settings are within commuting distance, and cost of living is well below average.
