

Position Title: Anesthesia Veterinary Technician I, II, or Specialist

Hospital: University of Florida Veterinary Hospitals

Location: Gainesville, Florida

The UF Veterinary Hospitals' AAHA accredited Anesthesia & Pain Management service is responsible for administering anesthetics, and monitoring patients before and after procedures for all medical and surgical services of the Small and Large Animal Hospitals. The goal of this service is to provide the highest level of patient care with a focus on ensuring health and comfort pre-, intra-, and post-operatively.

In addition to patient care, technicians in this service play a significant role in instructing veterinary students, fellow technicians, and other hospital personnel in the administration of anesthetics and the proper use of anesthesia equipment. Duties are performed in various facilities within both hospitals including operating rooms, cath labs, MRI/CT/radiology suites, and dental procedure areas to name a few.

The UF Veterinary Hospitals are seeking technicians who are looking for an opportunity to specialize in veterinary anesthesia and pain management as a long term career choice.

Preferred Qualifications Include:

- Credentialed veterinary technician and four years of veterinary experience in anesthesia
- Credentialed veterinary technician and VTS specialty certified in anesthesia
- Knowledge of animal care and nursing
- Knowledge of medical terminology, anatomy, and terminology
- Knowledge of the equipment and materials used and their availability and applications
- Ability to effectively maintain a working environment while in stressful situations
- Ability to effectively communicate with employees of various levels and responsibilities

Click here to apply and visit here to review available benefits

Additional UF Small Animal Hospital positions are available by visiting the UF Small Animal Hospital Jobs and Internships. For inquiries, please feel free to email vm-recruiter@vetmed.ufl.edu.